The Challenges of Do-It-Yourself Security

Internet connectivity comes at a price. We expose intellectual property and data not only to customers and third-party partners but also to internal employees. We expose our businesses to inadvertent or even malicious data leakage. Our company information, in the wrong hands, poses a significant risk – a risk that no business needs.

- We need to know we are safe from outside threats as well as inside threats.
- We need to know that our intellectual property, payroll and personnel data, financial information and strategic plans are secure.
- We need to demonstrate compliance with the best security practices, financial and healthcare regulations, and other requirements.
